Water supply ample so far in Carlisle
Rumors that the city of Carlisle was running out of water circulated last week, following a leak in the line to Licking River.

The leak was discovered and repaired the same day (Aug. 13) keeping the pump shut down to a minimum. Water from the upper reservoir was transferred to the lower lake to maintain the flow and prevent a stoppage. Mary Tappity clerk pointed out.

The situation in the county is another story. Water supplies for cattle and other livestock are at the critical stage said at extension agent for agriculture Mike Phillips.

Farmers are either hauling water to replenish supplies or hauling cattle to the market he said.

Quite a bit of rain, three to four inches is needed to get streams running again. Phillips figures it will take most of the winter to get dried up farm ponds back to normal.

Rumor that someone was pirating water from the 4-H Camp Lake proved to be just that rumor. 4-H officials lowered the lake level several feet last week in
